

Forest of Galtres Camera Club

16th December

Ladies V Gentlemen

Honour was at stake for the lady members of the club. Last year the same event led to a defeat for the ladies by the narrow margin of two points. But this year the outcome was different. A convincing victory for the ladies who naturally were delighted. There were good images entered from both teams.

Our judge for the evening, Andy Throup who last came to the club to deliver a night photography course, explained that the benchmark for awarding points to each entry came from the two best photographs he had identified as worthy of the maximum twenty. It was to the ladies' advantage that these photographs belonged to Pam Pope. There was a perfect ethereal landscape and a beautifully sharp image of a hawk with its prey. All other entries, therefore, scored less than twenty. Andy shared his views on the merits of many of the photographs as well as suggestions for improvement were appropriate.

Many thanks to Andy for judging.

As this was the last meeting before Christmas, a buffet of festive food was enjoyed.

The accompanying photograph, courtesy of Pete Dobson, carries Christmas greetings to all from camera club members.

Our next meeting will be Monday January 13th: The Streets of York with Christine Shepherd.
